What is a COAD?

Community Organizations Active in a Disaster (COAD) provides for the needs of the community by utilizing existing resources and reducing the duplication of services through information sharing, planning and training.

The COAD does not provide direct services, but indirectly assists the community before, during, and after disaster strikes by acting as a clearinghouse of available resources.

The COAD maintains a master roster of materials, services and personnel available through its member organizations. When the first responders have a need for those resources, the COAD helps to coordinate and expedite the delivery to individuals and families in Warren County.
